Leadership and great leadership development depend upon our ability to empower, engage, learn-relearn new ways to optimize the best in ourselves and others. "Even poor leaders can change their spots" Jack Zenger, Joseph Folkman Harvard Business Review

Aspiring to great leadership in our lives, our work and our organizations is critical. We must rise to the challenge before us, or remain stuck in a place of stasis, complacency, rigidity or reactivity that fuels decline.

Not everyone wants to be a leader, but we must all hone our leadership skills in order to become successful pioneers in a brave new world where change, challenge, complexity and opportunity will confront us every step of the way.

We need great leaders who champion us forward and guide us towards a better present and future. Great leadership is grown from refusing to be broken or defeated in the face of the greatest challenges and failures; but using them to develop new ways, better ways of thinking, communicating and doing that inspire the best in oneself and others.

Great leadership is mirrored in the thought and actions of those who lead forward! Great leadership is championed and furthered by those who understand that it is our ability to work together to develop a better present and future that will guide us forward or take us to the abyss of decline and destruction.

Great leadership includes (to quote, McKinsey and Company) "motivating people means going beyond money".Great leaders means more that strategic thought and the ability and experience to drive execution; it means honing one's ability to empower others.

Great leadership is a 3Q equation supported by courage. Courage grows each time we align intelligence (IQ) humanity (EQ) + integrity (SQ). Results are achieved when not only play to strengths, but USE changes, challenges, stressors even failures to R-E-A-C-H (Redirect focus-Empower confidence-Actualize potential-Harvest results)
